Contemporary Literature in English I, II (DSC IX, XIII)
Semester III, IV
(2024-2025, 2025-2026, 2026-2027)

Preamble: It is an utter necessity to engage students in an exploration of literature from diverse cultural, geographical, and linguistic backgrounds. Through a rigorous interdisciplinary approach, students will delve into the complexities of contemporary literary texts, analyzing their thematic, stylistic, and socio-political dimensions. It will foster critical thinking, analytical skills, and a nuanced understanding of the dynamic landscapes of contemporary literatures in English. By examining works from various genres, periods, and regions, students will develop a comprehensive understanding of the evolution of literary forms and their intersections with broader cultural phenomena.

Objectives:

1. To help the students get familiar with various contemporary texts in English language from different parts of the world
2. To enable them to evaluate the socio-political, historical, and cultural contexts that influence the concerned texts
3. To empower them to examine the intersectionality of identities such as race, gender, class, and sexuality as portrayed in contemporary English literary works
4. To incapacitate the students to explore the global dimensions of contemporary English literature, including its transnational and diasporic perspectives
5. To develop among them the advanced skills in close reading, literary analysis, and critical interpretation

Course Outcomes: By the end of the course, the students will be able to:

1. Identify and describe key themes, styles, and techniques used in contemporary English literature.
2. Evaluate the socio-political, historical, and cultural contexts of contemporary English literary texts.
3. Demonstrate an understanding of intersectionality by analyzing how race, gender, class, and sexuality intersect in select contemporary English literary works.
4. Compare and contrast the perspectives and experiences of authors from different cultural and geographical backgrounds within contemporary English literature.
5. Apply advanced close reading skills to critically analyse and interpret complex literary texts from the contemporary English literary canon.

Semester III, IV
(2024-2025, 2025-2026, 2026-2027)

Preamble: The course is text-oriented and consists of creative writings in English from the countries formerly colonized by the European countries. The course explores poetry, fiction, drama and prose highlighting the relationship between the colonizer and the colonized. It mainly focuses on the colonizers' reactions to the colonial and neo-colonial forces. It is designed with an intention to introduce students to the key concepts in postcolonial studies and major postcolonial thinkers and writers. The literary texts under consideration are seen as a cultural meeting-point of male and female characters of different races, classes and ethnic groups. The course will assist students in widening their literary horizon and in analyzing and interpreting the colonial and postcolonial literary texts on their own. It will also help students broaden their hearts and empathize with the marginal and race and gender discriminated people.

Objectives of the Course:

1. To introduce the students to the study of Postcolonial Literature
2. To help students get acquainted with major issues in postcolonial literature
3. To introduce the students to colonialism and its effects on cultures and societies
4. To motivate students to read colonial and postcolonial texts and analyse them from the postcolonial perspective
5. To develop the students' understanding of the cultural politics of imperialism
6. To Problematize the idea of postcolonial literature and ask whether the geographically and culturally dispersed authors can be subsumed under the umbrella term—postcolonial

Course Outcomes: By the end of this course, students will be able to:

1. Analyse and interpret the colonial and postcolonial texts applying the postcolonial literary theory.
2. Define the key concepts in postcolonial studies.
3. Read, comprehend and engage with postcolonial literary criticism.
4. Know how race, class, gender, history and identity are presented and problematized in the literary texts.
5. Know how a literary text, explicitly or allegorically represents various aspects of colonial oppression.

Critical Theories I, II (DSC XI, XV)
Semester III, IV
(2024-2025, 2025-2026, 2026-2027)

Preamble: The course 'Critical Theories' is introduced to M.A. Part II (English) with special intention. 'Critical Theories' is base of understanding literature in English and can be called an essential part of it. Hence, learners must be acquainted with and trained in 'Critical Theories'. Also, the learners need to be introduced with the application of these theories to study in detail some representative texts. They need to learn how to enjoy the aesthetic aspects with critical appreciation of works of art. Hence, this paper introduces certain important contemporary critical theories with their application to some representative poems, novels, dramas, autobiographies and stories etc.

Objectives:

1. To provide students with the opportunity to learn the contemporary critical theories
2. To get the students acquainted with the dimensions of major theories with theorists
3. To enable them to apply learned theories to literary works in systematic manner
4. To make the students engaged with critical thinking of creative writings

Outcomes: After completing the course, the students are expected to be able to:

1. Know the major contemporary critical theories, their development and contributors.
 2. Understand the dimensions of these critical theories with their nuances.
 3. Apply a specific theory to a literary text for better reliable, valid and authentic based on facts interpretation of it.
 4. Create own judgments on literary works in English with critical thinking.

Study of Genre: Biography and Autobiography (DSC XII)
Semester III
(2024-2025, 2025-2026, 2026-2027)

Preamble:

This course explores the concepts and significance of biography and autobiography as literary genres. Through a selection of readings and assignments students will examine the ways in which individuals construct and interpret personal and historical narratives. The course is helpful to develop a critical understanding through engagement with biographical and autobiographical texts. It will also bring the students abreast of the other types of literature, besides the frequently studied literary types viz. poetry, drama and fiction. This DSC paper is for the III semester only.

Course Objectives

1. To enable the students to understand the origin and development of biography and autobiography
2. To help them get familiar with different constituents of biography and autobiography
3. To incapacitate the students to comprehend the features of biography and autobiography
4. To enable the students to analyse the process of relating life in biography and autobiography
5. To empower them with capacities for interpreting select texts

Course Outcomes:

By the end of the course, the students will be able to:

1. Outline the different stages in the development of biography and autobiography.
2. Comprehend the elements of biography and autobiography.
3. Appreciate critically the qualities incorporated in biography and autobiography
4. Understand different circumstances that shaped the biography and autobiography.
5. Analyse the narrative techniques employed in biography and autobiography with reference to select texts.

Translation Studies-I, II (DSE III A)
Semester III, IV
(2024-2025, 2025-2026, 2026-2027)

Preamble: Translation Studies is an academic interdisciplinary field of study dealing with the systematic study of theory, description and application of translation, interpreting and localization. As an interdisciplinary field, translation studies borrow much from various fields of study that support translation. These include comparative literature, computer science, history, linguistics, philosophy, semiotics, cultural studies, and sociology and so on. Translation studies in the humanities are comprised of two components: translation theory and practice of translation as a literary art. In the theoretical domain, students are expected to achieve conversance with the history and philosophy of translation and to discover for themselves an understanding of a number of abstract (theoretical) questions with significant implications. In the study of translation as a literary art, students learn to read translations critically and labour to render artfully texts from a source language into target language.

Translation as a relatively hermetic activity has become a major buzzword in today's world. Students- and the general public – find it more and more necessary to be informed vis-a-vis the multicultural and multilingual environment we inhabit. Translation studies help one to develop skills to be able to communicate efficiently and emphatically between languages and cultures. Translation studies are academic research area that has expanded massively in recent years. Translation was formerly studied as a language-learning methodology or as part of comparative literature, translation workshops and contrastive linguistic courses. Over time, the interdisciplinary of the subject has become more evident and recent developments have seen increased specialization and the continued importation of theories and models from other disciplines.

Objectives of the Course:

1. To introduce students to translation studies as a separate discipline of knowledge
2. To increase their awareness related to the nature and scope of translation studies
3. To introduce student's contemporary theoretical issues in Translation Studies

4. To help students comprehend major issues and methods in Literary Translation
5. To enhance the students' knowledge of different languages

Course Outcomes:

By the end of the course the students will:

- 1) Comprehend translation studies as a separate discipline of knowledge
- 2) Comprehend the nature, scope and theoretical issues in translation studies
- 3) Comprehend major issues and methods in literary studies
- 4) comprehend process of translation of different languages
